

I Wish I Could See Your Smile Once Again

I started writing songs when I was in high school. A tragic accident of classmates in Casper, Wyoming inspired me to write this song. Back in the day, it was recorded as a single on a "45". In this version I added cello which I always wanted to do because I love the sound of cello and guitar together. I think it adds more depth to the song. This song will always be dear to me as it reminds me how fragile life is and how important family and friends really are. Losing someone you love is never easy.
